SAC ROOM BY ROOM FALL 2022

The data used to calculate the (actual) WSCH load for each instructional space was the actual course scheduling instructional hours and the post census student enrollment for each of these courses, as captured in each college's scheduling database (Ad Astra).

This course scheduling information is connected to another software that allows us to see each room's usage in a weekly calendar format as opposed to a list format. The calendar view is easier to understand, and as such on the following pages we show the calendar view for each classroom and class lab for a sample week in the Fall 2022 semester (Monday September 11 - Saturday September 16, 2022).

The building and room number can be found in the upper left corner of each page.

Each scheduled box has the course number and course name listed, along with the start and stop time.

The color of the box reflects the percentage usage of the student seats: green indicates the course is meeting the Student Seat State Utilization target for percentage of seats occupied for classrooms (66%) and for class labs (85%), and blue indicates its over the target. Orange indicates the student seat occupancy is under target, while red indicates that the course had zero students enrolled.
